<https://tramin2018.sciencesconf.org>

TRAMIN2018 is an international and cross-disciplinary meeting focused on “Socio-environmental trajectories of mining territories” that will be held in Chambéry (Savoie, France) from the 15th to the 17th October 2018. A post-meeting excursion will be organized in the Maurienne Valley (Savoie, France) on the 18th October.

TRAMIN2018 aims to bring together researchers from the various scientific communities working on mines and mining territories. It aims to cross geological, geographical, historical, sociological, legal, anthropological, economic and environmental approaches by putting in perspective the role and the socio-environmental impacts of mining activity on development, transformation and reconversion of these territories. The TRAMIN2018 meeting is therefore primarily a forum for exchanging on the added value of interdisciplinarity to better understand the socio-environmental trajectories of current and/or past mining territories. In-fine the main objective is to be able to implement territorial development strategies adapted to the challenges of sustainable development in these territories.

TRAMIN2018 intends:

1. to decompartmentalize disciplines and highlight the added value of an integrated and cross-disciplinary approach;
2. to compare the experiences of former mining countries (e.g., France, Portugal) where mines are abandoned and those from countries with large (e.g., Canada, Australia) or developing (e.g., Senegal, Argentina, Chile) operations.
3. to integrate the notions of sustainable development concerning the mining territories, combining economic, social and environmental geology. This will include establishing strategies for mining territories development, taking into account the concepts of inheritance and socio-environmental trajectories.
4. to federate an interdisciplinary community, at national and international levels, aiming to set up joint research projects.
